SOLUTION OF A GREAT GEOGRAPHICAL PROB-BLEM .- Soon after the discovery of America. adventurous navigators were employed to seek for a passage, by water, from the Atlantic to the Pacific Oceans, along the northern coast of this continent. As early as the reign of Elizabeth it was ascertained that if there were any such passage its perpetual obstruction by ice would make it useless for navigation .-Still the geographical question continued, and the scientific world was concerned to know whether the continent of America extended to the north pole, or whether short of that extent, its northern limit was bounded by continuous reach of those frozen seas, straits, and channels, parts of which had been frequently visited. Explorations both by land and water, were made at different times, until finally the discoveries of Messrs. Simpson and Deas, officers of the Hudson Bay Company, in 1838 and 1839, left yet to be surveyed only a water. section of the coast, extending westward from Parry's straits of the Fury and Hecla, and including the large extent of land called Boothia Felix, generally represented on maps as an island.

In 1846 the Hudson's Bay Company sent out John Rae, Esq., to survey this unexploied Blacasmith's and invite them to an almost entire new portion. He accomplished the task, and on Stock of BAR IRON, HARDWARE and CUTthe 10th of September last made his report to the Governor of the Companyr The principal fact which he ascertained is that Boothia Fe- 2000 " A. B. Steel lix is a part of North America-a peninsula as 2000 " English Blister 200 setts Wagon Boxes Captain Ross supposed it to be. His explorations, taken in connection with those that preceded them, settle the long mooted question, and show that, with the exception of Boothia Felix, which stretches as far northward as 74 deg. of latitude, the northern coast of America extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific. in a line varying but little from the 70 deg. of 1000 lbs Log Chains, north latitude .- Cin. He who wants to be on the popular side can change with every passing breeze. If he wishes to put down the well earned character of an individual, and afterwards finds that all his efforts have been unavailing, he will change as soon as the chamelion and praise the name he had been making every effort to put down .-Just such a character is worthy the scorn and DAGUERROTYPE LIKEYE SSES derision of every decent man, woman and child in christendom. The just measure of infamy will be dealt out to such an individual ere long -- if not in time, eternity will reveal the crimes of the degraded wretch.

"Mysterious disappearance" has become a standing phrase in the papers of the North .-Men, women, cashiers, tellers, clerks and in dividuals of every description daily disappear. The mysteries of New York are getting to be as notorious as those of London or Paris.

At a late Court of Common Pleas at Zanesville, Mary McLelland recovered a verdict of $3000 against John Vandervert, for a breach of wishing to purchase Land or Lots, will find it to thei Padding and Canvass. promise of marriage. Paying pretty dear for a month's courting.

No deduc- permit them to increase the number of their family, without great inconvenience, suffering, or perhaps risk of life. A method of avoiding these troubles and dangers, at will, (resently discovered by a celebrated French Physician) is fully communicated in this work, so that any person may avail himself of it at once, without purchasing any instrument, medicine, or other article, from the author. The means of prevention here set forth, cost comparatively nothing, and are within the reach of all. The process is new, safe, infalliable, convenient, simple, and cannot injure the health of the most delicate. Nor does it curtail matrimonial privileges in the least.

Morally Considered.

The object of this work can be shown to be of the ighest utility, and sustained by the soundest principles of prudence, political economy, and virtue.-It shows how a physiological effect may be produced, scientifically and without injury to the constitution. which thousands attempt to accomplish by the most unwise and reprehensible means. I he object is by no means new to the world. The means will be ess teemed by all scientific, right-minded and sensib-l people as a discovery in physiology of the highers consequence to public morals and happiness.

The Instruct of Nature.

Love, and the desire, for union between the sexes, will be indulged, talk of prudence as we may.— Without marriage, we have, in all countries, a debasement of one sex, and the criminal indulgence of the other; with marriage, and the unrestrained indulgence of the natural instinct, very often suffering and misery of the most fearful character. Who, then shall deny to man, (a free agent,) the right to marry, and to regulate the instinct of nature?
Young Markin D Proper.

Young Married People, whose fortunes are not yet established, will find in this work matter to interest them deeply, and information of the highest value, which they should not, on any account, be ignorant of. Hundreds of married people, now advanced in life, have assured the author, that if they had possessett such a treasure in early life, it would have saved them more than half the suffering and deprivation they have since endured.

UNBAPPY WIVES. Unhappy Wives, who feel that their physical confear that each period of continement will terminate their existence, will hail the discovery of this certain means of relief with unbounded joy. Let all such unfortunate and unhappy wives lose no time in ob-

Scrofula, Consumption, Insanity, Apoplexy, Disease of the Heart, and other horrible complaints, capable of transmission from parent to child, afflet many worthy people, who, at the same time, are as capable of enjoying themselves in the marriage state as their more fortunate fellow beings. Shall such persons refrain from marriage on this account, or shall they marry and give birth to a feeble offspring, destined to a life of suffering or an early death?—The answer to these serious questions will be found in the work here recommended.

EARLY MARRIAGES. Early marriages are strongly advised by all philosophers and writers upon social and political sub-jects. Early marriages beyond all question, tend to promote virtue and happiness; and with the power of regulating the procreative functions, made known in this work, may be freely entered into, without fear of incurring responsibilities which cannot be sustain-

Over Population of the Earth.

Over Population of the earth need be no longer ap prehended. The calculations of Malthus, and the wild fears of Robert Dale Owen, are alike rendered baseless by the discovery here communicated to the world. "The control of man over his accidents," in this respect at least, is here established. The wisdom of exercising such control, none who give the subject a moment's consideration, can doubt.

HONESTY OF THE WORK. There is no deception or humbuggery of any kind about this work. It is precisely what its title indicates, a scientific publication, containing information af great value to married people, or those contemplating marriage, expressed in plain lan-guage, which all can understand, with no unnessary words put in merely to swell the number of its pages. The whole story is told, and the means of accomplishing the objects of the work fully and faithfully given, so that the reader may avai! himself of it at once, without purchasing any medicine, instrument, or other article from the author. The means of protection which it recommends, may also be relied upon, without fear of disappointment or in-
